REVIEW (from greatnonprofits.org)

The Public-Private Alliance Foundation (PPAF) draws on the knowledge and experience of several individuals with an immaculate background in development. What has always impressed me about PPAF is the creative tracks that they have taken to influence and create sustainable development solutions across the world. I strongly recommend PPAF as a place worthy of your donations and time.

health-environment-poverty trap that Haitian mothers face when cooking with wood or charcoal (the country's chief energy use). The Public-Private Alliance Foundation and several partners are piloting an environmentally friendly ethanol cookstove and a briquette press that uses agricultural waste -- both are environmentally friendly. Partners include SimACT, Inc., Project Gaia International and Dometic AB, plus local organizations including Cap Lamandou Hotel (owned by SimACT), the Art Creation Foundation for Children, and Konbit Pou Ayiti (KonPay), and its partner Social Tap, Inc. A Marigold grant will help support the pilot and program expansion. You can read more on the home page of www.ppafoundation.org

Thanks for your participation!

Upcoming Events

September - Pilot Implementation Start-up - David Stillman and PPAF Board member George Garland will travel to Haiti from September 16 through 22 to begin the pilot project. Ethanol cookstoves will be piloted with families associated with the Art Creation Foundation for Children and with the Cap Lamandou Hotel (owned by SimACT), and the briquette press using agricultural waste with Konbit Pou Ayiti (KonPAY), in conjunction with Social Tap, Inc.

October 3 - SAVE THE DATE - PPAF Partners Against Poverty Fundraiser - Plan to attend this exciting event at the showroom of our sponsor, Resource Furniture, in Mahattan, 6 - 8 pm. Details and registration information will be available soon. <http://www.resourcefurniture.com>
