

MORE UPDATES FROM THE PUBLIC-PRIVATE ALLIANCE FOUNDATION

Dear Colleagues and Friends of PPAF,

Since our last update, we've posted a number of items on our blog: Public-Private Partnerships for Sustainable Development. These include a three-part glossary on Climate Change, Biofuels and Bioenergy; on Fish Farming in the Dominican Republic; on Sustainable Development and MDG #7; and several other topics. See: www.ppafoundation.org/blog We hope you'll subscribe.

We have also uploaded more videos on our YouTube Channel, on fish farming in the Dominican Republic and an interview with Josephine Infante of the Hunts Point Market in the Bronx, New York. Go to: www.YouTube.com/ppafoundation

Look for more news soon about PPAF's upcoming event on "BioEnergy Investment Risk Management through Business Model Innovation." This will be held in Santo Domingo from 8 to 10 September, hosted by the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the President of the National Energy Commission of the Dominican Republic. ResearchPAYS, Inc., is partnering with PPAF to facilitate the discussions. Participation is by invitation only. Please contact us if you wish to be considered.

As you already know - these are difficult times for non-profit organizations. Please consider supporting our work to help bring jobs and sustainable development to our focus countries, Madagascar, the Dominican Republic and Haiti. You can do this through this link: Just Give/PPAF Foundation or contact me directly at ppafoundation@gmail.com or by telephone: 914-924-0108.

David Stillman, PhD
Executive Director,
Public-Private Alliance Foundation