REVIEW (from greatnonprofits.org)

The Public-Private Alliance Foundation (PPAF) draws on the knowledge and experience of several individuals with an immaculate background in development. What has always impressed me about PPAF is the creative tracks that they have taken to influence and create sustainable development solutions across the world. I strongly recommend PPAF as a place worthy of your donations and time.

briquette press that uses agricultural waste -- both are environmentally friendly. Partners include SimACT, Inc., Project Gaia International and Dometic AB, plus local organizations including Cap Lamandou Hotel (owned by SimACT), the Art Creation Foundation for Children, and Konbit Pou Ayiti (KonPay), and its partner Social Tap, Inc. A Marigold grant will help support the pilot and program expansion. You can read more on the home page of www.ppafoundation.org

Thanks for your participation!
